INTRODUCTION

At the time of these ideas, the fate of man stood, bringing them closer to each other, on an equal basis, the human upbringing of the seer of his dignity was expressed. Mukhtaram President Shavkat Mirziyoyev's speech on the theme "the rule of law and the maintenance of human interests – the guarantee of the development of the country and the welfare of the people" in the solemn ceremony dedicated to the 24th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan said that "...we consider improving the activity of all At the same time, they are also exposed to various evil dangers that have not been seen before. The mercenary forces are turning simple, arrogant children against their parents, against their own land, causing them to die, for their lives. In such harsh and alarming conditions, we must further increase vigilance and awareness on this issue of parents, teacher-mentors, the public, neighborhood. We must educate them ourselves, without giving our children to someone else's hands.

In carrying out these tasks, we rely on our national traditions, which have been formed over the centuries, on the rich heritage of our ancestors.

From ancient times, such qualities as respect and appreciation of Man and his rights in our ancestors have become a monad to the nature of our people. The first sources of human rights are reflected in the book Avesto, which belongs to the zardushti religion.

When we look from the point of view of the period, on the basis of and on the basis of the religious-philosophical legal doctrine, "Avesto" served as a criterion of political and legal thought for the people and the state, as well as a source for practice. At "Avesto" we meet the views on the life of our people, the way of life, the traditions, values of the norms of moral rules, religious beliefs, legal problems associated with a person and its members, as well as the rights of the society.

Among the notable aspects of the book, education is regarded with special attention to education and labor, and education is recognized as an important pillar of life. The consistent implementation of the rights of young people to acquire knowledge is considered an important task. In the meantime, it is shown that the human duty at Avesto does not consist in assimilation of morals, but it is also necessary to think about the person and the family child. In turn, these ideas are given to express the ideas put forward on the creation of the legal and pedagogical bases of Family Education.

In the primary classes, the first legal concepts are inextricably linked with the etiquette of communication and harmoniously combined with tales of kindness, Proverbs, Proverbs, Proverbs. As evidence of our opinion, a discussion on Proverbs was organized in the reading lesson of this class. Proverbs cultivate the minds of young people, incite them to be right, truthful, courteous, courageous, courageous, persistent. In the proverbs, such naughty cases as hacking, greed, theft, fraud, greed, hooliganism are exposed without reproach. Proverbs teach to die sober, to distinguish a friend from an enemy, to be humane, kind, sweet, faithful, to appreciate parents, relatives and friends, to respect adults, to be compassionate to the little ones.

The peoples who lived in Central Asia, thanks to their mutual economic, spiritual and cultural relations and cooperation, enriched each other's folklore with the ideas about the purpose, functions, types of upbringing in it and adapted to the spirit of the era. The thinkers of Central Asia, based on the sources of folk pedagogy, in turn, expressed their views on the use of folk pedagogy, in particular folklore and its use in education, created new grounds for the development of folk pedagogy.
