Abstract: This article discusses social pedagogical necessity for developing the sense of patriotism of future lawyers. The article also states that the application of a situational approach to the problem of developing a sense of patriotism in future lawyers is of particular pedagogical importance.

Keywords: future lawyer, patriotism, strategy, national interest, situational approach, feeling of military patriotism, principles, unity and integrity of the Motherland, interpersonal social relations, social environment.

Introduction

At a time of rapid development, the professional development of specialists in the field of crime prevention and public safety requires the development of social and pedagogical concepts in the development of a sense of patriotism.

Homeland (Arabic "vatan" - motherland) means the place, territory, social environment, country where people live, where their descendants and ancestors were born and raised.

Particular attention should be paid to the formation of a sense of patriotism (Latin "patriots" - compatriot, "patris" - homeland, country). After all, a citizen, as a member of the state, must ensure its honor and dignity, be able to fight for its interests.

A situational approach to the process of developing a sense of patriotism is important in the effective organization of the educational process aimed at this goal and a comprehensive in-depth analysis of pedagogical phenomena.

Patriotism in man is manifested in three directions: 1) knowledge - the acquisition of values inherent in the concept of homeland; 2) belief - the transformation of the acquired knowledge in the field of values into belief; 3) action - the expression of one's faith through practical activity.

The formation of sufficient knowledge and skills for crime prevention and public safety professionals to successfully perform their duties requires the establishment of an integrated pedagogical system. A sufficient basis will be created in the educational process for the comprehensive development and professionalism of officers serving in the field of crime prevention and public safety of the Republic of Uzbekistan.

The Law of the Republic of Uzbekistan No. 436-II of December 12, 2002 "On General Military Obligation and Military Service" [9], the Law of the Republic of Uzbekistan "On Education" of September 23, 2020 Law of the Republic of Uzbekistan No. ZRU-638 of January 9, 2018 "On the Defense Doctrine of the Republic of Uzbekistan" No. ZRU-458 [1] Resolution of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan dated February 7, 2019 No PP-4166 "On additional measures to improve the system of training in the field of crime prevention and public safety", and February 16, 2017 "On further improving the system of postgraduate education" PF-4958 Decree [11] and other legal documents.

Over the past three years, the Republic of Uzbekistan has implemented many reforms in the field of crime prevention and public safety.

In the process of developing a sense of patriotism, it is a feeling, aspiration, readiness and skill, especially aimed at making a person conscious, conscientious, loyal and courageous. In this regard, Vissarion Grigorievich Belinsky made a wonderful remark that a man is, first of all, a son of his country, a citizen of his homeland, warmly embracing his interests.

In conclusion, future lawyers should always devote themselves to the service of the motherland in order to develop a sense of patriotism, first and foremost, to protect our homeland. All the so-called and described sources of patriotism are not in isolation from each other, but in the unity which is formed not by the addition of the moving forces, but by their mutual multiplication.
