INTRODUCTION

English is often a highly desirable language to learn for non-native speakers because of the many benefits it offers. English is spoken worldwide and has become a universal means of communication. You will find English speakers in almost any country. It is used in many fields and jobs, helps you speak with people from countries outside of your own, is useful when traveling, or moving to a different country, it is the language of the internet, and many famous books and movies were produced in English. English makes an essential role not only in economy, but also in society and culture. In this essay it is clarified with examples how the significance of English in economic, social and cultural terms.

The English language plays a significant role in promoting trade among other countries. English organizations to create and sustain international links. The more countries we set diplomatic relationships with, the better it will be for the economy of our country. Moreover, when one travels to a foreign country like China or Germany people try to communicate with visitors in English. Besides, most of the scientific documents are written in English. When scientists discover something new, they publish the information in the English language. Also, English- speakers get better job opportunities since English is the main language in business meetings. Its importance in the global market place therefore should not be undervalued or underestimated. For instance, employees could opt for higher job positions in different companies such as call centers. People who know English perfectly could also work either as translators or English instructors.

The English language provides many benefits to us in our social life. Knowing English can expand our social surroundings. One of the most important benefits it that English provides to us is communication with all over the world. We can contact with many people from a foreign country. Nowadays almost in every country, people can speak English. In addition, English speakers have better education chances to study abroad and can get high-quality education from universities such as Harvard, Oxford. In addition, English speakers can widen their world knowledge. In brief, everyone should make an effort to learn English because they can have more chances to be successful in many fields. Indeed, English is a very common and substantial language that brings people together and makes communication easier on a global scale. As Boris Johnson said: "English breaks the communication barriers between people from diverse cultural backgrounds and it creates a new community where people come together and share their cultures and ideas with broader audience". Language and culture are inseparable entities. In communicating with other people using different dialects, linguistic competence alone is not enough to be knowledgeable in that language, it is also obligatory to be aware of the culturally appropriate ways to talk to people, express gratitude, make requests, and agree or disagree with someone. English Language Teachers satisfies diverse learners who understand that culture is central to learning the language. Culture not only shapes the thinking process, but also defines modes of communicating and receiving information. We must associate using language with culturally suitable behavior in order to be successful in language teaching. Such kind of differences exist in every language such as the place of silence, tone of voice, the appropriate topic of conversation, and expressions as speech act functions e.g. apologies, suggestions, complaints, refusals, etc. So, a language is a part of the culture and a culture is a part of a language.

English is spoken throughout the world. It is even the official language of 67 different countries, and the official language of the United Nations, NATO, and the European Union. It is also used in various fields such as business, diplomacy, and foreign relations. Also, when traveling to another country or talking to someone from a country outside of your own, English is very valuable to know, since it's very likely that the people from that country will know English. And if you are to move to a different country, learning English will help you to communicate and integrate with the local community, especially in an English-speaking country. In addition, English is the language of the internet. It is estimated that 52% of the world's most frequently viewed websites are in English. This means that knowing English will give you the ability to over half the internet, which you wouldn't understand otherwise. Also, many famous works of literature were originally written in English, such as the works of Shakespeare, and many other great writers. Many renowned films were also produced in English, such as much of the Hollywood franchise.

In conclusion, English is used throughout the world, and is appealing to non-native speakers for a variety of reasons. It is a practical skill to have for traveling or conversing with people from other countries. If you were to emigrate to a different country, you'd have an easier time fitting in, and getting a job would be easier if you knew English. Also, knowing English allows you to access and understand many famous works of literature, films, and websites in English. I would like to mention that English is a dominant language and makes an important role in economy, society and culture as I proved above. In other words, English allows us to enrich our knowledge of other cultures and to become successful people in life.
